

Run

The screenshot shows a web browser window with a form titled "What color do you prefer?". The form contains two radio buttons: "Red" and "Blue". Below the radio buttons are two buttons: "Check 'Red'" and "Check 'Blue'". The "Red" radio button is selected. The browser's address bar shows "http://localhost:5555/". The page title is "What color do you prefer?". The page content is as follows:

```
<!DOCTYPE html>
<html>
<body>

<form>
  What color do you prefer?
  <input type="radio" name="colors" id="red">Red
  <input type="radio" name="colors" id="blue">Blue
</form>

<button onclick="checkred()">Check "Red"</button>
<button onclick="checkblue()">Check "Blue"</button>

<script>
function checkred() {
  document.getElementById("red").checked = true;
  document.getElementById("blue").checked = false;
}
function checkblue() {
  document.getElementById("blue").checked = true;
  document.getElementById("red").checked = false;
}
</script>

</body>
</html>
```

The browser's status bar at the bottom shows the time as 10:58 PM on 1/22/2019.

Click Check "Red"

The screenshot shows the same web browser window as before, but after clicking the "Check 'Red'" button. The "Red" radio button is now selected, and the "Blue" radio button is unselected. The "Check 'Red'" button is now disabled, and the "Check 'Blue'" button is enabled. The browser's address bar shows "http://localhost:5555/". The page title is "What color do you prefer?". The page content is as follows:

```
<!DOCTYPE html>
<html>
<body>

<form>
  What color do you prefer?
  <input type="radio" name="colors" id="red">Red
  <input type="radio" name="colors" id="blue">Blue
</form>

<button onclick="checkred()">Check "Red"</button>
<button onclick="checkblue()">Check "Blue"</button>

<script>
function checkred() {
  document.getElementById("red").checked = true;
  document.getElementById("blue").checked = false;
}
function checkblue() {
  document.getElementById("blue").checked = true;
  document.getElementById("red").checked = false;
}
</script>

</body>
</html>
```

The browser's status bar at the bottom shows the time as 10:59 PM on 1/22/2019.

Click Check "Blue"

Run >

Result Size: 497 x 574

```
<!DOCTYPE html>
<html>
<body>

<form>
  What color do you prefer?
  <input type="radio" name="colors" id="red">Red
  <input type="radio" name="colors" id="blue">Blue
</form>

<button onclick="checkred()">Check "Red"</button>
<button onclick="checkblue()">Check "Blue"</button>

<script>
function checkred() {
  document.getElementById("red").checked = true;
  document.getElementById("blue").checked = false;
}
function checkblue() {
  document.getElementById("blue").checked = true;
  document.getElementById("red").checked = false;
}
</script>

</body>
</html>
```

What color do you prefer?

☐ Red

☒ Blue

Check "Red" Check "Blue"

01:27

ENG

10:08 PM

1/22/2019